Precautionary Testing

Update

As the next step in our precautionary testing begun earlier this month by Arizona Department of Health Services (ADHS), we have scheduled the second round for Tuesday, September 1 at 9 a.m. This round of testing will be PCR (nasal swab) tests for only the Associates that tested negative in the first-round of serology testing.

If you are one of the Associates to be tested, you will receive the ADHS-required forms to be completed. While ADHS does allow for Associates to opt-out of this second round of testing, we would appreciate your participation with this procedure as we continue to monitor and care for our community's wellbeing.

Important Information

 A PCR (nasal swab) test is a "point-in-time" test and is not an indicator of any past infection, future infection or possible antibodies that may have been developed against COVID-19. A negative test result means that SARS-CoV-2 (COVID-19) was not present at the time the PCR test was given.*

 A COVID-19 serology test is a blood test that looks for coronavirus antibodies. If the result is negative, the individual has not been exposed to the virus or may have been exposed very recently and antibodies have not yet been produced. If the test is positive, it means their body has developed some immune response to the virus. At this time, it is not known how much immunity is provided with a positive result.*
